Debating Hate Crime: Language, Legislatures, and the Law in Canada (Law and Society Series)

Allyson Lunny

Debating Hate Crimes examines the language used by parliamentarians, senators, and committee witnesses to debate CanadaAEs hate laws. Drawing on discourse analysis, semiotics, and critical psychoanalysis, Allyson M. Lunny explores how the tropes, metaphors, and other linguistic signifiers used in these debates expose the particular concerns, trepidations, and anxieties of Canadian lawmakers and the expert witnesses called before their committees. In so doing, Lunny reveals and interrogates the meaning and social signification of the endorsement of, and resistance to, hate law. The result is a rich historical and analytical account of some of CanadaAEs most passionate public debates on victimization, rightful citizenship, social threat, and moral erosion.
