Christianity and Existentialism J. M. Spier

"It is not possible to give a simple answer to the question, "What does Existentialism teach?" Existentialism has many variations, its representatives being extremely diverse in their philosophical conceptions. Some existentialists seek to effect a positive synthesis with Christianity and others are extremely atheistic and nihilistic. A third group seeks to occupy an intermediary position. We cannot generalize but must examine each existentialist individually, but before we can fruitfully begin our examination we must investigate the background of this philosophy. Since every phenomenon of culture has its roots in the past, Existentialism has a philosophic and a non-philosophic background."
